Letter to Cary

When other hearts are round the
And other friends surround the
When other days have crown'd the
More fresh and green than mine
Then things how sad and lonely
This doating heart will be
Which while its throbs throbs only

Yet do not think I doubt the
I know the truth remains
I would not live without the
For all the world contains
Though the star that guides me
Along life's changing sea
And whatever fate betides me
This heart still turns to the
