POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW.

Whatever your occupation may be, and however crowded your hours with affairs, do not fail to secure at least a few minutes every day for refreshment of your inner life with a bit of poetry.—Prof Charles Elliot Norton.

No. 197.

THE AMULET.

By EMERSON.

The following dainty bit of imagination will be relished by all readers of Emerson's deeper thoughts. Those who are unfamiliar with his philosophic writings will doubtless also be pleased to see how the tender passion was regarded by one who, even in youth, was always of a contemplative mind.

YOUR picture smiles as first it smiled;
The ring you gave is still the same;
Your letter tells, O changing child,
No tidings since it came!
Give me an amulet
That keeps intelligence with you,—
Red when you love, and rosier red,
And when you love not, pale and blue.
Alas! that neither bonds nor vows
Can certify possession;
Torments me still the fear that love
Died in its last expression.

("Poems You Ought to Know" began Sunday, July 28. One is printed every day.)
