John Kendrickson board the Schooner Elihu of New Bedford Bound on her southern coast supplying light houses with oil sailed Oct 21st Joseph Husband Master had a fine passage not and arrived at Emerald island on the eleventh of Nov it being our first light it is a revolving light of fifteen lamps Nov 12 employed at ship duty Nov 13th supplied the light with four hundred and fifty gallons of oil and one hundred and three tube glasses and put on eight reflectors we have to take our oil about three miles and a half up the creek and it is as crooked as any body can imagine we took the oil up and loaded it and came back the same tide which never was done before it is very good landing but you have it to rock up a sand hill about an eight of a mile but fifty gallon casks are the best to take up Nov 14th took off two casks of water in the morning the remainder of the tide drove it Nov 15th it is head wind and blowing a gale both anchors down employed at different falls Nov 16th still blowing a gale at the north wind this morning picked up some pieces of a wreck of an English Ship which was cast away on a small island about 5 miles from here called sunbeach she was loaded with salt and wood this afternoon went on shore and got some wood and had a few times collecting curiosities as birds the 20th I have made a mistake in writing the above in calling it Emerald instead of Amelia island
